

TEPPCO and Enterprise To Increase Jonah Gas Gathering Capacity Following Completion of First Portion of Phase V Expansion

July 25, 2007

HOUSTON--(BUSINESS WIRE)--July 25, 2007--TEPPCO Partners, L.P. (NYSE:TPP) and Enterprise Products Partners L.P. (NYSE:EPD), through their Jonah Gas Gathering Company joint venture, today announced that the installation of 67,500 horsepower of compression at the Bridger Station in Sublette County, Wyoming is now mechanically complete and the final stages of commissioning are under way. The additional compression, along with an 87-mile pipeline looping project that became operational in December of 2006, represents the first portion of the Jonah Phase V expansion program and will increase the capacity of the Jonah Gas Gathering system to 2 billion cubic feet per day (Bcf/d). The second and final phase, which involves the installation of another 102,000 horsepower at the Bridger compressor station, is targeted for completion in the first quarter of 2008 and is expected to increase capacity on the Jonah Gas Gathering system to 2.3 Bcf/d.

Located in the Greater Green River Basin of southwestern Wyoming, the Jonah Gas Gathering system is comprised of more than 700 miles of pipelines which serve approximately 1,200 producing wells in the prolific Jonah and Pinedale fields. Based on the latest federal government data, Pinedale and Jonah are the second- and sixth-largest domestic natural gas fields, respectively, based on proven reserves.

"Increased demand for natural gas gathering and service opportunities, such as those provided through our Jonah system, is one of the six key trends we have identified as driving TEPPCO's strategic initiatives," said Jerry Thompson, president and chief executive officer of the general partner of TEPPCO Partners, L.P. "Completion of the Bridger compression project further enhances our ability to meet the projected growth in drilling in the basin." Thompson added that the increased capacity on the Jonah Gas Gathering system resulting from the additional compression will further reduce wellhead pressures, thereby increasing production rates, which will maximize recovery of reserves and generate incremental gathering fees for the joint venture.

Annual volume growth in the Jonah and Pinedale fields has averaged more than (30) percent during the past five years and more than (40) drilling rigs are currently active in the play. In addition, the Jonah system is currently gathering approximately 1.75 Bcf/d of natural gas, which represents more than 85 percent of current production from the Jonah and Pinedale fields.

"Ongoing expansion of the Jonah Gas Gathering System plays an important role in our Rocky Mountain growth initiative by providing us with access to additional natural gas reserves that can create more opportunities for us to utilize the partnership's integrated value chain," said Dr. Ralph S. Cunningham, president and chief executive officer for Enterprise Products Partners. "The incremental volumes resulting from additional compression on the system will feed Enterprise's existing Pioneer silica gel processing plant, as well as our nearby state-of-the-art cryogenic facility, which is under construction and expected to be completed in the fourth quarter of 2007."

Upon completion of the expansion, TEPPCO is expected to have an approximate 80 percent interest in Jonah Gas Gathering Company, with Enterprise owning the remaining 20 percent and serving as operator.
